WOMAN'S SHOE THE ONLY CLEW

William B. Jones Robbed of $300 After He Had Swallowed What He Believes to Be "Knock-Out" Drops.

A woman's shoe is the only clew that the police have to lead them to the person who robbed William B. Jones of No. 2002 Lafayette avenue of $300 Tuesday

While Mr. Jones has but a hazy recollection of the events of the evening, he remembers that he went to a clothing store and got a suit of clothes, which going to a saloon and drinking a highball nd when he woke up a doctor was asking him not to swallow the thermometer and his anxious relatives were gathered about Investigation disclosed the fact that he had been brought home in a cab late at night. He was unconscious, and Doctor J. C. Hallam of No. 2002 Lafayette avenue said that Mr. Jones had swallowed "knock-out" drops and that his condition was critical. Mr. Jones said that he remembere nothing after the highball. The driver of the carriage said that a well-dresse young man had halled him and said that he had a friend, much intoxicated, whom he had a friend, much intoxicated, whom he desired to take home. The well-dressed young man got out at a saloon on the way to Jones's house, paid the driver and told him to take Jones on home.

When the driver found that he could not awaken Jones, he drove to the police station, where the condition of the occupant of the carriage was learned. In the carriage with him was found a woman's shoe, No. 7, which is the only clew the police have.

Rivers and harbors.

Colonel Fleming said that the protection of the great alluvial basin of the Mississippi River was of the highest importance. In speaking of the losses resulting from the Kansas City flood of 1903, he said:

utely cut off the transmission of the vast vol-ime of United States mail which passes through entiment.

In addressing the meeting on the subject of "Scientific Salesmanship." A. F. Sheldon of Chicago contended that, while the process of manufacture was reduced to a science, the operation of selling goods was still without its definite rules.

SIX YEARS' TERM Alexander H Revell's statements that the presidential terms should be six years each, and that the chief executive should each, and that the chief executive should be prevented from accepting another nomination, created much enthusiasm, He said, in part:

The National Business League has inaugurated a movement to secure an amendment to the Constitution of the United States which will fix the term of office of the President at six years instead of four. At the same time, and by the same amendment, it is proposed to make the President ineligible to re-election.

As things now are, there is, in fact, only about three years of settled conditions, and many would acknowledge two years. The fourth year is given up to the campaign.

A longer term for the President would not only create a longer period of business security, but it would give ampler time for a President to formulate and carry out his policies.

SUGGESTS MEANS TO PROTECT PUBLIC.

F. B. Thurber Takes Question of Labor and Capital Before the Transmississippi Congress.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS HELD.

F. W. Fleming of Kansas City Recites Statistics Regarding the Damage Done by High Water Last Summer.

"In this age of organization and universal sufferage the only way in which the general public can be kept from being ground between the upper and nether nillstones of organized capital and organzed labor, is to organize, educate and vote," was the statement made yesterday morning before the Transmississippi Conpresident of the United States Export Association.

The paper read by President Thurber was the first of the second session in the Hall of Fame, and was entitled "Organized Labor and the General Public."

"Capital should favor this," said President Thurber, "for it is in danger of confiscation; unorganized labor should favor it, for it is in danger of being crowded to the wall; and if organized labor is sufficiently intelligent and reasonable it will favor it because the body politic is like the human body—no member can be injured without injury to the other members."

President Thurber said that the public President Thurber said that the public was the sufferer in troubles between capital and labor, the rights of many being sacrificed for those of a few. After his address, he offered resolutions.

The session was one of the most interesting ever held by the congress, the paper by Colonel Fred W. Fleming on flood control in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys being especially forceful. Cther addresses were by John W. Noble, the "Father of Okfahoma;" E. O. Stanard, former Lieutenant Governor of Missouri; John Henry Smith of Utah, a former president of the congress; A. F. Sheldon of Chicago, and Alexander H. Revell of Chicago, president of the National Business League.

of the features of the meeting was e great number of resolutions introduce uching the various interests of the trans touching the various interests of the trans-mississippi region. The resolutions were re-ferred to the Committee on Resolutions, which will report Saturday, the last day of the congress. A resolution was intro-duced by Judge Waiter Gresham of Gal-veston. Tex., requesting an appropriation from the Federal Congress for the con-struction of a channel at Galveston of 2,000 feet in width and not less than thir-ty-five feet in depth at low water, any general or special notices, or by the insertion of exceptions to general agreements. A resolution was introduced by Ed Fletcher of San Diego, Cal., advocating the strengthening of the fortifications on the Pacific Coast; another by D. C. Lewis of Oklahoma City, Ok., advocating state-hood for Oklahoma and Indian Territory and the joint admission of these Territories to statehood; also resolutions by A. Johnstone of Iowa, recommending deeper water for the Upper Mississippi.

Colonel Fleming stated in his paper that in no other way does the progress of this country contrast with that of European nations more than in the control of waterways. The countries of Europe, he stated, have gone far ahead of the United States in the erection of suitable means of protection against flood waters.

He told of how the Government had kept abreast with the growth of population in other expenditures, but offered the following figures to show that the rivers and harbors had not been given the fullest attention in the percentage of increase. The value of property destroyed was two and a half times that caused by the Galveston flood, paralyzed the interstale commerce of a large section of the Southwestern country and absoume of United States mail which passes through Kansas City daily.

Now, it is a familiar principle of law and equity that every citizen must use and control his own property so as not to damage others, and an application of this well-understood rule to the question of finod control in the great navigable waterways demonstrates that it is the plain duty of the national government to control its property so that it will not become a devastating force, ravaging agricultural lands, towns and great cities located upon its banks.

More than $5.990.990 people occupy this area, and as the forests are cut away from the upper portions of the catchment basin the mountains as the original reservoir are becoming practically useless. The discharge of waters, therefore, by the great rivers is increased more than one hundredfold.

Shirine, Same, English tov spaniels, black and tan, dog, 1 and 1 by the great rivers is increased more than one hundredfold. It is the plain duty of the Federal Government to take hold of this problem in an earnest, broadgauged way. Such action is fully sanctioned by precedent, and the underlying principles involved in this matter must be recognized by the nation in control of its property as well as by the individual in control of his property. The Transmississippi Commercial Congress, which, among other things, has accomplished so much in the past in securing the enactment of the national irrigation law, and in the improvement of rivers and harbors, should express in ouncertainness the emphatic demand of all the people for flood control by the Federal Government in its great waterways.
